New version of the most popular RDP Tool worldwide available January 2009

visionapp Remote Desktop 2009 to add support for Citrix, Linux/UNIX and Mac OS X

Eschborn/Ettlingen, December 10, 2008/FR: Today, visionapp announced the January 2009 release of the visionapp Remote Desktop (vRD) 2009, the update for their popular remote administration tool. Its new features include multi-protocol support and extended database functions. In previous versions, support was limited to Remote Desktop Protocol (RDP) access to Windows systems only. With the integrated connection protocols extended to Citrix ICA, VNC, SSH, Telnet and HTTP/S, vRD 2009 will manage Citrix, Linux/UNIX and Macintosh systems. In addition, the vRD 2009 also integrates a multitude of functions from mRemote, an open source software tool acquired by visionapp in October.

More than 10,000 administrators from over 2,000 companies around the world are using visionapp's vRD 2008. These commercial customers augment the more than 120,000 administrators using vRD's freeware versions. According to Thomas Hertwig, Senior Product Manager at visionapp, the new functions of vRD 2009 will further boost the number of licenses sold: "The attractive price and the added value from the upgrade and support package will convince an increasing number of SMEs and large companies to use the full version rather than the freeware." In the meantime, more and more users are migrating from the open source tool mRemote to the full version of visionapp Remote Desktop.

"For system administrators, vRD 2009 will considerably simplify simultaneous administrative access to multiple servers and clients," said Hertwig. "With its ease of use and high efficiency, the software provides a full return on investment in less than 30 days."

In January 2009, the public can download a 30-day trial version of vRD 2009 free of charge from the visionapp website. When the evaluation period expires, the user can either buy the software through the worldwide visionapp reseller network or register as freeware user. The freeware, designed for smaller or private environments, supports a maximum of three simultaneous open connections and a maximum of 15 exportable connection configurations. The full version includes the database function for collaboration in a team.
